

EASY ACCESS

After considering many locations in the Southeastern United States, Koyo Steering Systems of USA (now JTEKT Automotive Virginia) became the first business in the Botetourt Center at Greenfield in 1999, when we announced plans to locate our U.S. headquarters here. The natural beauty of the Greenfield site was very appealing, but easy access to automakers in both Detroit and the South was critical. With Greenfield's proximity to Interstate 81, our product can be on its way to customers within minutes. Assistance and incentives from state and local governments, along with the area's quality labor force were also strong factors in the selection process.
